Guidance notes

Custody

As a general rule the joint custody continues after separation and divorce. You do not have to take any action if you both wish to continue sharing the custody.

If you both agree to discontinue joint custody after separation and divorce and you both agree on who should have the sole custody, you can register a child custody agreement with Agency of Family Law. You need to complete a specific form which is available from Agency of Family Law website www.familieretshuset.dk. It can also be obtained from Agency of Family Law.

If you do not agree on the child custody, Agency of Family Law will call you to one or more meetings for the purpose of reaching an agreement. If agreement is not reached, Agency of Family Law can bring the case before the court on request.

Residence of the child

The parents can agree between themselves where the child should live. A child residence agreement can be enforced through the bailiff's court if the agreement explicitly provides that it can form the basis for enforcement.

If you have joint custody of the child, but do not agree about the child's residence, Agency of Family Law will summon you to one or more meetings for the purpose of reaching an agreement. If agreement is not reached, Agency of Family Law can bring the case before the court on request.

Contact

The parents can agree between themselves how contact with the child should be arranged. A contact agreement can be enforced through the bailiff's court if the agreement explicitly provides that it can form the basis for enforcement.

If the parents do not agree on contact with the child, Agency of Family Law can decide how the contact should be arranged. This also applies in cases of joint custody.

Child welfare counselling and mediation

Agency of Family Law offers to assist parents who disagree on child contact, custody and/or residence in finding a solution, e.g. through mediation or child welfare counselling. Refer to the leaflet "Med barnet i centrum", which is available from Agency of Family Law or www.familieretshuset.dk.

Child maintenance, child benefits and family allowance

Parents have an obligation to support their children until they reach the age of 18. The parents can agree between themselves how the support of the child should be arranged. Agency of Family Law can decide how this should be arranged on request.

The parent who lives alone with the child can apply for ordinary or extraordinary child benefits from the local authority.

As a general rule the family allowance is payable to the mother of the child. The father of the child can file a request with the local authority to receive payment of the family allowance if he meets the relevant conditions.

Request

For practical reasons, please register any agreement on change of custody if applicable, or attach any request for a decision on residence, custody, contact or child maintenance to the petition for divorce or separation if applicable.

Forms

Custody, contact and child maintenance forms are available from Agency of Family Law website at www.familieretshuset.dk.
